Peacock Ready to Tell All He Knows in Lindbergh Case

Norfolk Man Says He Will Meet Probers for Quizzing

NO OTHER COMMENT

Previously Had Said He Could Not Appear in Kidnaping Probe

NORFOLK, Va.—(AP)—Dean Dobson Peacock announced Thursday morning that he was notifying Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police, that he was ready at any time to meet at Norfolk an accredited representative of Governor A. Harry Moore to give information pertaining to the Lindbergh case.

Previously, Dean Dobson Peacock had told police officials that he could not go to Trenton for an interview.

The message which the minister said he was sending to Colonel Schwarzkopf follows:

"Replying to your telegrams of Tuesday and Wednesday requesting my presence in Hopewell, I stand ready at such time as you may select to meet at Norfolk you or Governor Moore's accredited representative and will fully and freely give all information in my possession pertaining to the subject."

He told newspapermen gathered at his home that he had no further information to give.

Five Graduated by Columbus School

Education Trains for Future Leadership, Speaker Tells Graduates

Columbus High School, which in the last generation has sent out eight ministers and three missionaries, some to foreign lands, graduated a class of five Wednesday night.

J. S. Wilson, Sr., opened the commencement program with an invocation memorializing past sons and daughters of the community. He was heard by an audience that completely filled the Columbus school building.

Miss Frances Darnall read the class history, and Miss Rena Johnson read a paper entitled "We Build." The class response was given by Lee Abbott, the group president. Diplomats were presented by Principal R. E. Jackson to Miss Darnall, Miss Johnson, Mr. Abbott, Miss Estelle Caldwell and Carl Gilbert.

Two piano numbers were given by Miss Marjorie Byers, of Columbus, and two songs by John Clyde Hill of Hope.

"Mr. Jackson introduced Alex. H. Washburn, of Hope, as the commencement speaker. Mr. Washburn said in part:

"You who are being graduated tonight have the good fortune to catch the world at a standstill, as the upturn is about to begin. What you make of yourselves, and how far you will help to carry your country toward a new prosperity and a greater happiness, depends upon the leadership that you have been taught to exercise."

"The nation leans heavily upon its educated men and women. America was founded on three cornerstones: An honest ballot, an honest judiciary and a free education for every child. But while the opportunity for a common school education is free to all, many are unequal to it. Little as you think, instead of being merely an ordinary graduating class among a thousand and graduating classes all over America this spring, you are that merest handful of students who in your own community have come all through the

Woman Kidnaped By Bank Bandits

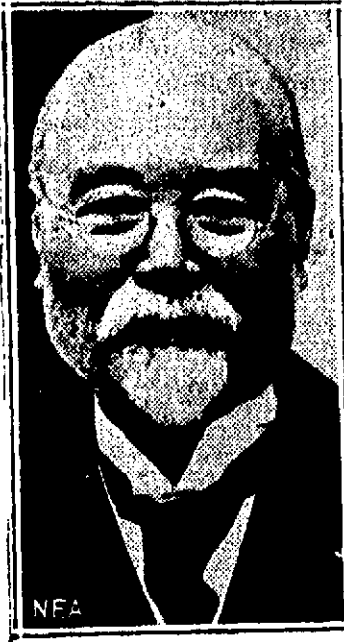

Girl Is Missing After Texas Bank Is Looted

PETROLIA, Tex.—(AP)—The Continental State Bank of Petrolia was looted of approximately $1000 afternoon Wednesday by bandits who were believed to have kidnaped Miss Mary Frazier, cashier, and taken her with them.

They escaped from the bank unnoticed and the robbery was not discovered until a customer of the bank found no one there and notified H. W. Perkins, president, who hurried to the bank to find Miss Frazier gone and the money missing.

Search was started immediately for two strange men who were seen loitering about the street Wednesday.

Profits Held Paid To Walker Aides

Mayor's Brother Got Commission "Spits," Seabury Charges

NEW YORK.—(AP)—The Hofstadter investigating committee moved closer to Mayor Walker's financial door Wednesday when evidence was produced alleging that a salesman of city street cleaning equipment split commissions with the mayor's brother and his missing accountant.

Dr. William H. Walker, brother of the mayor, received $2,828, Attorney Samuel Seabury charged. This was half the commissions the salesman, William J. Scanlan, was paid for selling equipment to Walker's administration.

Seabury brought out that Russell T. Sherwood, a long sought witness, got $5,000 shortly after a similar deal was put through.

Testimony was produced that the records of a transaction by which Mayor Walker profited to the extent of $26,535 without risking a cent were unaccountably missing from the files of the suspended Wall Street house of J. A. Sisto and Company.

William J. Scanlan, broker, realty dealer and salesman of sorts—who has no office but takes his phone calls at city hall—admitted the payment to Dr. Walker and said it was for medical services. He denied it represented a split of commission on the sale of street sweepers by the Butler Manufacturing Company of Cleveland and of ash removal trucks.

But Seabury came back at the witness with evidence showing that on each of three dates he drew checks to the mayor's brother he deposited double the amount in a Fifth avenue bank.

E. F. McFaddin Is Chosen Governor of Rotary Clubs

Hope Attorney Nominated by Acclamation at State Conference

FIRST SO HONORED

Hope Has First Governor From Southwestern Counties

Nominated by his only opponent, who had withdrawn from the race, E. F. McFaddin, Hope attorney, was chosen district governor of Arkansas Rotary clubs at the annual state conference Wednesday at Hot Springs.

The magnificent main dining room of the Arlington hotel witnessed the scene, when the first man from Hempstead county, and the southwestern section of the state, received this honor.

About 450 delegates and guests from all over Arkansas attended the conference, which opened at 9:30 Wednesday morning and closed Thursday noon.

The Hope club, which had campaigned for Mr. McFaddin for the last eight months, left the city in a caravan of cars at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, arriving in Hot Springs an hour before the convention opened. Most of the local party remained overnight to attend the annual banquet and governor's ball.

Mr. McFaddin's nomination came late Wednesday afternoon. Dr. H. T. Smith of McGee, the only other candidate, arose and announced his withdrawal, and then placed Mr. McFaddin's name in nomination. The Hope man was chosen by acclamation.

The state meeting marked the end of the administration of Sidney M. Brooks, of Little Rock, past district governor, who told the assembled Rotarians that he had devoted a third of his time during the last 12 months to his official duties, visiting the various Rotary clubs of the state and handling correspondence with the Rotary International offices in Chicago.

Mr. Brooks asserted, in his annual message, that Rotary is now more of a vital factor than ever before in its 29 years of history, through its international affiliations for the advancement of understanding, good will and international peace, by a world fellowship of business and professional men in the idea of service.

Beauty Contest Is Planned For City

Miss Hope to Be Chosen May 24—District Pageant May 26

A pageant for the purpose of selecting Miss Hope of 1932, is to be held at the Saenger theatre Tuesday night, May 24. This contest is to be held in conjunction with the merchants of the city with each entrant representing a business house.

The only requirements of the contestants are that they be local girls. They may appear in any costume of their choice with the exception of bathing suits and pajamas.

Contrary to the usual custom, Miss Hope will not be selected by popular vote or applause. A committee of out-of-town men will act as judges. The choice will be based on poise, carriage, expression, gracefulness and general deportment.

Miss Hope and her two maids are to be selected, representing first, second and third winners.

The prize to be awarded Miss Hope is a silver loving cup, and the privilege of representing this city in the Southwest Arkansas Bathing Beauty Contest, which is to be held on the Saenger Stage two days later, May 26. In this latter contest 18 cities in Southwest Arkansas are to be represented.

The American Legion Auxiliary held an interesting meeting at the Hope city hall Wednesday night, Mrs. V. E. Smith had charge of the program, the subject of which was "wearing the poppy."

A lengthy discussion on the annual poppy sale, to be held on Saturday, May 28 was held. A committee composed of Mrs. Cecil Weaver and Mrs. V. E. Smith were selected to have charge of the sale of poppies on this date.

Nine wreaths were made, which will be placed on the graves of World war veterans buried in Hope.

Two visitors were present at the meeting Wednesday night.

Denies Part In Kidnaping

Frank Parzych, who said Tuesday that he was one of the kidnappers of the Lindbergh baby, confessed later that his story was false. Parzych was arrested Tuesday for wife desertion and volunteered the kidnap story. He was examined for many hours, during which it developed he had been drinking heavily and was a user of narcotics. Wednesday he told Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney that his story was a hoax.

J. S. Parks Reviews Highway Program

Fort Smith Member of State Highway Commission Discusses Work of Department Thursday Before Fayetteville Rotary Club

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—(AP)—John S. Parks of Fort Smith, member of the state highway commission, in an address Thursday before the Fayetteville Rotary Club, reviewed the $100,000,000 highway construction program, paid his respects to the legislature for diverting millions of dollars from the highway department and for its "shortsightedness," and concluded with the assertion that he was "more than tired" of his position.

"Personally, I am more than tired," said Mr. Parks. "For five years I have been maligned. My nerves are about shattered. I know of no reason why I should continue carrying on."

Reviewing the past five years, Mr. Parks said the Martineau road law when enacted in 1927 "was without question the most popular legislation ever passed by an Arkansas assembly. That was five years ago. What a different story we find today. The law itself is viciously vilified its defamers proclaiming it has involved the state with a load of debt from which it will never be able to extricate itself. All this and more is being hurled against it notwithstanding the fact I drove from Fort Smith to Fayetteville this morning, a distance of 60 miles, in an hour and fifteen minutes, using approximately five gallons of gasoline out of which the highway revenue department received 25 cents to be applied on Arkansas construction bonds.

"What has brought about this revolution of feeling now so rampant over the state? The answer is simple. The public mind has been flamed into a state of emotional excitability and exaggerated sensations. It believes the present highway administration rotten and the members of the commission grafters and racketeers."

Mr. Parks said he was not here to defend the highway department or any member of the commission.

"If any member needs a defense of his action, he will make it himself," he said. "So far as I am concerned, I am offering none for Parks."

Mr. Parks said he was concerned more with the road improvement dis-

Plot Alleged to Keep McLean Away

Justice Blocks Effort to Support Claim at Ouster Hearing

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A justice Wednesday quickly squelched attempts to introduce evidence in District of Columbia Supreme Court to support the claim that an effort was being made to keep Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post, out of the United States through the threat of a Mann act charge against him.

Julius Peyser, McLean's attorney, made the assertion during trial of a suit attempting to oust McLean as co-trustee of an estate of millions left by his father, the late John R. McLean.

Peyser asked Elizabeth Poe, a member of the Post editorial staff, to produce "certain checks." After Justice Jennings Bailey asked why they were wanted, Peyser said they would support his charge that there was a concerted move to keep McLean from returning to this country. He is now reported to be in France.

Justice Bailey told Peyser he did not think it necessary to produce the checks.

The attorney said one of those he intends to call Thursday is Mrs. Evelyn Walsh. McLean, the publisher's wife, who filed the ouster suit on behalf of her three minor children.

Attorneys for the children Wednesday rested their case after Cereceron Thom, president of the American Security and Trust Company, the other trustee of the McLean fortune, and Frank Williams, auditor of the Post, testified.

PROFITS THREE WAYS

Organizing, Bond Sales and Improvements Done by His Companies

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Affairs of the Park Hill road improvement district in Pulaski county and the activities of Justin Matthews in connection with their organization, bond sales and improvements were investigated by the Highway Audit Commission Thursday.

Witnesses testified in the case of several districts Matthews or the companies in which he was interested or owned bought bonds, or obtained contracts for improvements.

Chairman Waggoner observed in questioning one witness that Matthews profited three different ways and "you boys were pretty good to Mr. Matthews over there."

Matthews was not present.

One Dies in Fight, One Hurt Gravely

Survivor of Mississippi Co. Battle Spirited From Osceola

OSCEOLA.—A. L. Young, aged 50, tenant farmer, is dead; P. M. Barton, 48, well known, Mississippi county planter, was taken to the Baptist hospital, Memphis, with four bullet wounds to his body and is in a critical condition; and Arthur Brown, Little River farmer, charged with the shooting, has been removed from the Osceola jail where he was placed by officers within an hour after the affray. He was taken to Little Rock, it was said, to avoid possible mob violence.

The affray occurred on highway No. 40, lateral road known as Crews Lane, 10 miles west of Osceola and in front of Arthur Brown's home about 3 Wednesday afternoon, and resulted from an argument between Brown and Barton over a hay baler. Young, passing along the road, stopped to listen to the argument, and when Brown drew his gun tried to disarm him. Young received the first three shots from Brown's automatic pistol and died instantly.

Barton was brought in an automobile to Osceola, from where an ambulance took him to the Memphis hospital. He was accompanied by a local physician, who examined and dressed his wounds en route to Memphis.

"I'm shot through and through," Barton told friends here. He said his leg was broken by one shot, another lodged in his abdomen and another in his chest and the fourth grazed his head.

He said he had gone to Brown's house to ask for return of a hay baler that Brown had been using, and was reported to have tried to buy Crews for 40 tons of hay. Brown argued that the baler, taken from one of Barton's farms last year, was junk that he had repaired it at his own expense and traded it to Crews.

The men had quarreled previously over the baler and both had consulted lawyers. Barton had told Crews not to deliver the hay to Brown and had papers drawn to replevin the baler. Before filing the suit Barton had gone Wednesday afternoon to see Brown to try to arrange an amicable settlement.

Brown's wife, Thelma Brown, it was said, brought Brown's gun from the house to the road to him at the height of the argument.

Young's body was taken to Lepanto, Brown's wife was in town late Wednesday afternoon arranging for an attorney for his defense. She had not been arrested.

Barton, who has lived in Mississippi and Poinsett counties several years, is one of the largest plantation operators in this county.

JUDSONIA.—Mrs. Dan Hardy, aged 38, drowned about 3 Wednesday morning when she fell from a boat in which she and her husband were fishing in Little Red river, four miles southeast of Judsonia.

A sudden tilt of the boat caused Mrs. Hardy to fall backward. Her husband held the body, but was unable to lift it clear of the water. More than 30 minutes elapsed before Mr. Hardy's cries attracted help.

Mrs. Hardy was born at Kewanee, Ill. Besides her husband she is survived by her mother, Mrs. J. C. Blair, Judsonia; one sister, Mrs. Vernon Blair, Swift, Swift; four brothers, Virgil Blair, Swift, Harland Blair, Judsonia and Orville W. and Lester A. of Illinois.

Detectives Sent to Find Mary Ford Missing Teacher

John Curtis Hoax Is Biggest Reported Since Biblical Times

NEW YORK.—The deception practiced by John Curtis, Norfolk boat builder, upon the Lindberghs, officials and the public in his pretended negotiations with kidnappers of the Lindbergh baby had a place today among the great hoaxes of Biblical and secular history.

Search for a parallel in which the deception had for its victim parental love and the attitude of a father for his son leads back to the 27th chapter of Genesis, and the story of Jacob masquerading as his brother Esau to obtain the coveted blessing of Isaac.

No hoax in modern times has received as wide publicity or as general acceptance as the activities of Curtis.

The nearest thing shown in available records was the north pole discovery hoax perpetrated by Dr. Frederick A. Cook, who was hailed as the first man to reach the pole in 1909 until his pretensions were proved to be false.

In 1835 marvelous discoveries on the moon attributed to Sir John Herschel, famous scientist, were reported in an article written by Richard Adams Locke and published in the old New York Sun. That has become the classic hoax of journalism.

Vocational Bill Passed By House

McDuffie, Economy Leader, Protests Adoption of $4,000,000 Measure

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The Democratic House, which booted its leaders on both tax and economy bills, Wednesday voted the Bankhead bill carrying a $4,000,000 authorization for vocational rehabilitation.

Over the protest of Representative McDuffie, Democrat, Alabama, economy leader, the membership massed in support of Representative Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, and approved continuation of rehabilitation work at the rate of $1,000,000 annually for four years. The funds would be spent on a dollar-matching basis with the states under the Federal Board for Vocational Education.

The Special Economy Committee of which McDuffie was chairman, had attempted unsuccessfully in its economy bill to eliminate gradually federal aid to vocational education.

McDuffie clashed Wednesday with Bankhead, his personal friend and fellow Alabama Democrat, denouncing Bankhead's bill both on economy grounds and as an usurpation of state authority by the federal government.

McDuffie said the Economy Committee had taken it for granted the vocational rehabilitation would expire at the time stated in the act—June 30, 1933.

He attempted to obtain a cut from $80,000 to $50,000, in an added annual appropriation for the four-year administration of the act but failed.

Women Democrats of State Hear Mrs. Ross

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, vice chairman of the democratic national committee and former governor of Wyoming, told the Arkansas democratic women's club Wednesday night that only a democratic administration will put a stop to the "growing bureaucracy at Washington that threatens to become a juggernaut, riding over our liberties."

Mrs. Ross' address was the feature of the closing session of the club's first annual meeting, and came after a session at which a lengthy platform was adopted.

Sheriff Curtis May Hold Prisoner Curtis

FLEMINGTON, N. J.—(AP)—A strange quirk in the imprisonment of John Hughes Curtis, fake intermediary in the Lindbergh kidnaping, was pointed out as the Virginia shipbuilder entered the Hunterdon county jail here Wednesday night.

At the New Jersey primary election Tuesday, John H. Curtis of Clinton, N. J., was nominated as the Republican candidate for sheriff of Hunterdon county.

Should he defeat his Democratic opponent in the November election and should the Virginian still be a prisoner at that time, Sheriff Curtis would have charge of Prisoner Curtis.

Injuries By Train May Prove Fatal

Mississippi Believed Dying Following Accident at Cabot

CABOT.—Oakley Vance, aged 25, of Decatur, Miss., suffered the loss of his left arm and left foot when he fell under a Missouri Pacific freight train on which he was riding here at 4 p. m. Wednesday. He was given first aid here and taken to Research hospital at Little Rock in an ambulance.

Vance said he had been "bumming" his way on the freight and when it stopped here for water he alighted. In attempting to board the train after it started he fell under the wheels.

Another Graduation Day

No generation of students is graduated under exactly the same circumstances, we told the graduating class of Columbus High School Wednesday night.

The world travels in a cycle, admitting some of us to adult life in easy times, while for others the prospect is hard and terrifying.

I would not dare tell you less than the truth—that you are entering the grownup world during a period of gloom and great distress. Your immediate predecessors haven't made a very good job of it.

My assignment tonight is to tell you something about that regrettable past, to explain the mistakes, and point out to you that you are that imperishable fountain of youth to which the world has always turned when in deep distress.

It was only a little over a hundred years ago that the civilized world approached complete disaster. Napoleon had overthrown the kings and nobles of Europe, and sought to give liberty and land to the common people. But in the end the kings beat him at Waterloo in 1815. Once again Europe was oppressed, weighed down by mountainous war debts and hopeless despair.

The great poet Goethe, looking out of his window in Germany, thought that everything was lost, and said: "I think God that I am not young in so thoroughly finished a world."

But although Europe was exhausted, Goethe was an old man. He did not reckon with youth. The young men and women rebuilt Europe—and over on our side of the Atlantic a young nation was being salvaged from the debts and chaos of the Revolutionary war.

Within 20 years after Goethe's pronouncement of doom upon the civilized world, business was picking up and trade and commerce were pushing out to the far corners of the globe with astounding speed. The steam-engine had been invented and our modern mechanical age was born.

The students who were graduated from school when Goethe delivered his funeral oration over the prostrate body of Europe, discovered before they had reached the prime of life that while Goethe was a famous poet he was badly mistaken about trade and commerce and the liberties of the common people. For prosperity did come back, and the people did win their freedom.

History shows us that no matter under what conditions a new generation enters the world, somewhere along the line it experiences a complete cycle of events before it leaves again.

The students of Goethe's day were graduated into a world full of pessimism and disaster. But in the prime of life they came upon prosperity and happiness.

Your speaker tonight was graduated from high school in 1918. America was on a great business boom. Everyone was optimistic—they even said, some of them, that there weren't going to be any more wars or panics. And we who were graduated in 1918 find that in 1932 the world is sunk in pessimism and disaster.

If into each generation some rain must fall, better to have it now.

A business man much older than I, said only last week, "Panics are made for young men."

The point I wish to make is, that if the fathers and mothers report present conditions to be the most critical within their memory, then our graduating class tonight can safely measure the future, saying, "This is the size of it. If I can conquer the problems of today, the problems of tomorrow will take care of themselves."

Today speculation is gone, success depends once more upon the ability of a man or woman to perform some useful service in which they will find happiness and money enough.

The graduating classes coming out into the world in 1932 are fortunate, indeed, for the values that they see today are real and lasting.

Just as the prices marked on the world's goods today are considered to be rare bargains, so are the values placed upon men and women nowadays the kind of values that will be steadfast through prosperity or panic.

A French Prize

A NEW prize for French novelists has recently been instituted in Paris. It is to be awarded annually to the writer of the best book dealing with the "back to the land" movement; and the interesting thing about it is that the prize is to consist, not of money but of 300 bottles of the best Burgundy wine.

Now it is quite apparent that something ought to be said about this, although we're not quite sure just what it ought to be. It does raise a queer picture, though; the ardent novelist, struggling in his garret, living on bread and water, enduring poverty while he grinds out his masterpiece, winning fame at last—and getting, not a cash award that would let him live in comfort, but instead a sea of wine for which his garret will offer the poorest of accommodations!

Isn't there the making of some kind of short story in this set-up?

Civilization, 1932!

At the top of the globe are labels for 'LINDBERGH KIDNAPING & MURDER', 'SHANGHAI BOMBING', 'HAWAIIAN PRIME PROBLEM', 'ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION OF BREXING', 'KILLING OF PRESIDENT COLEMAN', and 'MURDER OF LINCOLN'. A figure labeled 'LADY LASH' is also present.

Body at Newport Believed Identified

Finger Prints Said to Be Those of Cleveland, Ohio, Soldier
NEWPORT—Sheriff Gray Albright of Jackson county Wednesday telegraphed Mrs. Annie Vik at Cleveland, Ohio, that the sheriff's office is convinced the body of a man found murdered at a Federal Compress cotton storage shed here May 4, is that of her son, Clifford H. Vik.
Fingerprints were sent to the army and navy base where it was said they were the finger prints of Clifford Vik, who had re-enlisted in the army at Kelly Field, Texas, August 22, 1929, and was honorably discharged July 31, 1931.
A description is on record here of a man suspected of the murder and it is believed he can be linked up with the murder of a youth named Worthington.

Kidnap Bill May Get Early Action

House Subcommittee Approves Measure, Urges Group Sponsorship

WASHINGTON—(AP)—While the nation was learning more Wednesday of the Lindbergh baby hoax, a bill providing life imprisonment or death for kidnapers was given the approval of a House subcommittee.
A recommendation was made that the full Judiciary Committee submit the measure—sponsored by Representative Cochran, Democrat, Missouri—to the House for action as early as possible. It would forbid the transportation of a kidnapped person in interstate or foreign commerce and leave to the discretion of a federal judge the imposition of the death penalty or a sentence of from one year to life.
Federal prosecution of John Hughes Curtis, confessed hoaxer in the Lindbergh case, seemed remote.
It was said that the responsibility for taking whatever federal action is possible rested with Paul W. Kear, United States attorney at Norfolk, and that there is no present intention of guiding him from Washington.
A resolution offered by Representative Douglas, Democrat, Massachusetts, to authorize a $100,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the Lindbergh kidnapers and other abductors was tabled by the House Judiciary Subcommittee because Congress has no power to create such rewards. The president would be so empowered under the Cochran bill, Montague said.

Arkansas Farmer Slain in Row Over Hay Baler

OSCEOLA, Ark.—(AP)—A. L. Young, 50, farmer, was shot to death Wednesday afternoon when he assumed the role of peace maker and attempted to disarm one of the two parties in an argument over a hay baler. Arthur Brown, 37, another farmer, was arrested and charged with the slaying of Young. P. M. Barton, 48, who was quarreling with Brown, was wounded and taken to a Memphis hospital.

BARBS

Seventy-seven Dukhobors in British Columbia were sentenced to three years in the penitentiary each for running around in their birthday suits. Gosh, isn't Hollywood glad it isn't in Canada.

Gandhi has given up his spinning wheel and will use a sewing machine hereafter. But he's still one step behind the modern American woman, who has given up the sewing machine for contract bridge.

Now that Congress has decided to cut out polo ponies for the army flyers as an economy move, we might suggest that spurs be omitted from boots. The saving from this item in wear and tear on desks would be tremendous.

The more Congress battles over the Economy bill, the more it is apparent that Congress can't save anything but the farmer.

Business has reached the turning point, a Chicago economist says. We certainly hope it doesn't take the wrong turn again.

Tom Thumb Wedding to Follow First Picture at 8:15 O'clock

Saenger heater will open its doors at 6:45 Thursday night with the first feature starting at 7 o'clock. This arrangement is special for Thursday night only so that the Tom Thumb Wedding can be held immediately after the first feature picture which will be 8:15. This change of time was made at the suggestion of the mothers who state that the children, who participate in the wedding, become so sleepy after eight in the evening it would be almost impossible to have the wedding any later than 8:15.
The feature picture that plays in connection with the Tom Thumb Wedding is "After Tomorrow" starring Charles Farrell and Marion Nixon.

Magnolia Boys Work to Pay Own Expenses

MAGNOLIA, Ark.—To pay their way through college next year 30 boys have begun work for the summer in several departments at the Magnolia A. and M. College.
Nine boys who are employed on the farm have been put on a monthly salary basis of $18 and board. Before this time all work has been done by the hour. The remainder of the boys are working at the dairy, poultry plant, on the campus, in the office, power plant, kitchen, laundry, and doing repair work on buildings.
Students who are working are given one-half of their earnings while the other half remains on deposit for the coming term.

All indications for the cotton market are now favorable, says a market expert. Yet, everything favorable but the price.

Mrs. Sid Henry Telephone 321

Oh, sing the glad song of the morn-ing
When over the great world's rim
The pink sun smiles so gaily
That one must smile back at him!
And sing the brave song of the noon-tide,
Though the burden of work be great;
For the day wears on to its ending
And every task will abate.
Then sing the sweet song of the ev-ening,
Contented that strife be o'er;
And in the still dark of the gloaming
Thank God that of work there's still more. — Selected.

It seems an awful waste of beauty, but Thelma Bills, Austin, Texas, miss pictured above, is going to devote her life to politics. She recently addressed that august body and told it a mouthful! Now she's studying public speaking, awaiting the time when she can run for office.

J. S. PARKS

strict indebtedness and what will be the effect "if my fears are well found."

He told how the commission, in 1927, found on its "docket" a child with a tag on it representing $4,000,000—the total road bonded indebtedness of the state. He traced the interest payments, and principal payments which have reduced it to about $47,000,000.

Everything would have gone alright, Mr. Parks said, if the 1931 legislature had not diverted about $6,000,000 to other uses, leaving the highway department without funds to pay for contracts in process of execution.

"At its meeting last November, the commission, by resolution, urged the calling of a special session," he said. "The governor indicated this would be none and the time would be early in December. Protests against a special session immediately began pouring into Little Rock. Apparently the public and many of the legislators could not realize the necessity for it."

It was easier and more fashionable to criticize rather than to help.

"In my own mind the remedy to apply never appeared difficult. If the maturity date of the principal of the improvement bonds to be paid beginning with 1932 and ending with 1939 could be extended for a proportionate length of time the problem was solved. This was what I believed would be done. To me it seems as if the legislature did everything but that. At least we now find what I believe is an intolerable predicament. Holders of road bonds feel they have been treated unfairly by the legislature and that the present security they held has been repudiated."

"Having failed to make definite the possibility of the tax reverting back to lands in road improvement districts, the legislature also miserably muddled the proper maintenance of highways already built, by providing only $1,000,000 a year for this purpose. The Martinique road law and the recodification act specifically provided that not less than $2,500,000 should be spent annually for this purpose. There are 5,000 miles of gravel roads in Arkansas. Anyone at all familiar with highway deterioration knows $200 a year per mile will not properly maintain them."

"The appropriating by the recent legislature of only $1,000,000 for matching federal aid in Arkansas is another monumental monstrosity of legislative foresight."

This amount, Mr. Parks said, would "go a long way" toward completing gaps in main highways.

After the 1931 legislature diverted a huge amount to various other funds, Mr. Parks said stop orders were issued immediately by the highway department to contractors to cease construction.

"With a loyalty that was remarkable in its spontaneity contractors came back with the proposal they had faith in Arkansas," he said. "that they believed in its final ability to pay and asked for approval to continue their respective jobs with the feeling if the state was unable to pay in 1931 it would do so in 1932. The contractors were advised they assumed this risk at their own peril. They carried on and should be commended for performing the service they did. When these claims were presented to the legislature, it saw fit to write into its relief bill the provision that the state note board should issue notes for such work," payable from 1934 to 1939.

"Having done all this and more," Mr. Parks continued, "the legislature then reduced the appropriation for maintaining the highway department from $275,000 a year to $100,000 a year. This action automatically wiped out with the stroke of a pen every district engineers office in the state. "Now that the ox has gone into the ditch it may be we should all be satisfied and call it a day."

Sea Heroes Save Ocean Flyer

Cat Tales

Paul Long, electrician, Kingston, N. C., thinks every electrician should carry a cat, according to the New York Times. Long had the job of running a cable through the top of a house, but between the roof and ceiling there was hardly room for him to squeeze in and the distance was eighty feet.

He had an idea. He cut a hole in one end just under the roof, tied a string to a cat's tail, and shoved it in. He closed the hole and left an inch-wide opening, then cut another where he wanted the other end of the cable. He sat down and waited.

The cat was slow but finally appeared at the second hole. Long pulled her out with the string to her tail, tied his cable to the string and completed the job.

Mrs. Brown—"I hope you didn't take a second piece of cake at the party."

Bobby—"No, Ma. I took two pieces the first time."—Titt-Bits.

Learning From Grief
A certain grandson of Queen Victoria, when a freshman at Oxford, spent all of his allowance and was worse, gone ten pounds. He appealed to his royal grandfather, asking her for an advance on his future remittance. He didn't. Instead, he received a letter from that august lady, containing some reproof and much, much advice. In due course the young man applied to this. He had, he said, decided to heed everything his grandmother had to say about economy and thrift and had, in fact, begun by selling the original letter to a collector for twenty pounds.—New York Morning Telegraph.

DO YOU INHALE?

...wonder why cigarette advertising generally avoids this question?

ONE of the mysteries in cigarette advertising has been the apparent fear of the word "inhale." It seems rather foolish—for everybody inhales—whether they realize it or not... every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

Think, then, how important it is to be certain that your cigarette smoke is pure and clean—to be sure that you don't inhale certain impurities.

Do you inhale? Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question... because when you smoke Luckies' other delicate membranes get the protection no other cigarette affords. All other methods have been made old-fashioned by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Do you inhale? Of course you do! So truly this message is for you.

DAIRYING

A Profitable And Substantial Branch Of Farming In Southwest Arkansas

The Dairying Sections of the United States Have Suffered Less Than Any Other Community Producing Farm Commodities, Although Prices Have Fallen as Much as Other Products.

Our Farmers, Who Have Their Own Milk, Butter, Beef, Pork and Garden, Have But Scarceful Felt the Effects of the Present Era of Fallen Prices.

In looking over the various fields of farm endeavor, we find that dairying is, at the present time, one of the most profitable lines of farm production—Because of the continued growth in the demand for dairy products in cities—because we can produce dairy products much cheaper than northern dairy communities—because the dairy farmer, or even the farmer with one milk cow, does not have to buy so many food products for the consumption of his own family.

It is anticipated that the present congress may put a high tax on butter substitutes, just as it placed a high tax on colored Oleomargarine at its last session. There has been far less over-production of dairy products than many other farm commodities during the past two years. This was due only partly to the tax already in force on colored Oleo, and only partly to last year's drouth in much of the Northwest.

The farmers in dairy communities are still receiving monthly or semi-monthly checks for their milk or cream. If they have produced their own dairy feed, they can still sell milk products for a small profit. And most of the dairy communities are in Wisconsin, where farmers don't have the year 'round pasturage found in this section.

Our climate, soil and pasturage affords a wonderful place for dairying, no matter how large or how small the scale, so long as we use only good dairy stock. Dairying will make farm investments pay good dividends, and will help to build up Hope.

WE SHOULD HAVE MORE DAIRY FARMING IN THE HOPE TRADE TERRITORY

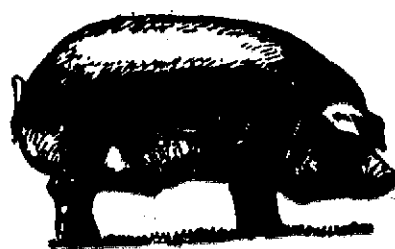

Now that we have a trick-free county, our farmers are urged to buy a good dairy cow—to start dairying on even this small a scale. They say that prosperity follows the dairy cow—always. This is said because dairy farming has brought prosperity to every farm community which has ever undertaken this project in a permanent way.

One of the reasons is because hogs and chickens always follow the cow on the farm. Once a farmer buys a dairy cow, he nearly always raises more hogs and chickens—more pork and eggs—than before. Thus he makes a considerable part of his own living on his own farm. The hogs, poultry and turkeys utilize the skim milk, and are thus fed and grown at no cost.

At present Hope is producing about 3,000 pounds of cream a day. This could be increased to 30,000 pounds a day—cream checks twice a month, into the hands of a large number of our farmers.

If you want advice about getting into dairying, inquire at Hope's creamery. It is headed by an experienced dairyman, who will gladly give any information about successful dairying.

Let Dairying Fill in the Gaps in Farm Prices and Profits. Let Dairy Farming Offset the Losses of the Last Two Years. Help to Make This Section a More Prosperous Community, and Every One in it Will Profit From the Movement!
